To the friends of Temperance and the public generally we now make our appeal in behalf of this paper. The publisher feeling it a matter of importance to the interest of the Temperance cause in the District, as well as the general interest of the cause, and having been, as he conceives, Providentially placed in a situation at this time when he can mingle this interest with that of the business men, and thereby render a double service to the community, and still further open a medium of communication by which our principles may be extended far and wide, at a cheap rate. He has purchased a printing establishment, so as not only to be able to put a daily paper regularly to press, but also a weekly; and still further, be able to do any other printing the public may be pleased to have done; and he assures them that they shall have no cause of complaint. He has made arrangements by which he can devote his time to the interest of the office and the paper; and, having employed Mr. Charles W.
Fenton, who will be always on the spot, to conduct the printing, he has no doubt but that general satisfaction will be given. We shall make arrangements to have the earliest news; also the proceedings of Congress.

We wish all who are indebted for the paper up to this time to pay up, as the affairs of the tri-weekly must be closed. They will perceive that we are about to give them a better paper, double the number, at the same price.

While the "COLUMBIAN FOUNTAIN" will be devoted to the cause of Temperance, its columns will be enriched by original articles on subjects calculated to interest, instruct, and benefit its readers. It is intended so to blend variety, amusement, and instruction, as that the various tastes of its patrons may be (as far as it is practicable) gratified.
Commerce, Literature, and Science, and every other subject of interest, not inconsistent with Temperance and morality, will receive the earnest attention of the publishers.
Nothing of a sectarian, political, or personal character will be admitted.

A CARD.

THE subscriber begs leave to say to members of Congress and others, that he has several good rooms which he will let on accommodating terms, either furnished or unfurnished, located on the South side of Pennsylvania avenue, between 9th and 10th streets, and equidistant between the Capitol and the public offices. I have also two of the best cellars in the city, which I will rent in part or the whole, or receive goods on storage.
This is a good opportunity for butchers or market people.

FALSE PRIDE--A CONVERSION.

BY L. A. GOBRIGHT.

(Concluded.)

"Where are you going?" And without waiting for a reply, she answered her own inquiry, "to that old Lodge, of course."

While she was alone, she gave vent to her animosity by tears—reflected, in her mind of the days gone by, when her husband, after dark, never stepped beyond the threshold, unless to church two or three nights in the week, and then with her, when she was blessed with a trusty servant with whom she could safely leave her children. She imagined his downfall from grace, (for she believed such a thing possible), and more than this, looked with horror upon the friendships formed with those who honestly, but humbly toil for their daily bread, although her husband was himself a mechanic. However, an employer, and this placed him high up above such an association, and removed, what appeared to her, a disgrace. Two hours did she thus spend, and as the clock struck nine, the Odd Fellow (and I know he was beside a very good fellow) returned. He discovered his wife sitting before the fire.
He addressed her, but his kind words had the effect of eliciting only brief responses.
At last she broke out in a kind of half cry.

"Here have I been sitting ever since seven o'clock, and alone, not even a friend to step in and keep me company. But, perhaps our neighbors thought that you were at home, not thinking that you had neglected your family of late."

"Why, my dear, it is quite early—only nine o'clock. I left the Lodge before the business was completed. I was importuned to stay, but I made an excuse."

"Quite early, indeed! Did you see Brother Gaines?"

"Come, come, don't think so harshly of the poor man. I did see brother Gaines, and he is so improved in appearance and in conduct as to possess the confidence and respect of all who know him. He is, in truth, a new man. Beside, he is devoted to the principles of the Order, and is one of our brightest members. Always at his post as the Noble Grand, he discharges his
—"

"Did you say Noble Grand! NOBLE GRAND! What nonsense! You will make me think more unfavorably of the Lodge than ever. I think that you might have selected some one more respectable. And what is a Noble Grand, pray?"

"But we know no distinction as to trades or professions. It is the honest man, the benevolent, who, in our association, can claim the highest honors. We meet on the platform of equality, as brothers; and, were it otherwise—"

At this moment a neighbor entered, and, for the time being, the conversation was suspended, to be renewed "at a more convenient season."

About a month after this occurrence, the initiate was taken sick, and with symptoms which gave cause for alarm. As the wife sat at his bedside, filled with fearful apprehensions, she reproached herself with having opposed her husband's admission as a member of the Lodge. What if he should die! The thought was agonizing! He had ever been affectionate, and never said a word calculated to give her a moments uneasiness. She alone had been to blame, and would willingly recall the reproaches in which she had indulged.

It was on a Sabbath afternoon, and in the chamber of the sick man, partially darkened. There was naught to disturb the silence save the hard and deep breathings of the sufferer. Like an angel of mercy, she watched over him—her face, red with weeping, formed a strong contrast to his, from which the fires of fever had departed, leaving an ashy paleness. A gentle knock was heard at the door, which aroused the sleeper, and so soon as he opened his eyes the visitors were before him. With a voice scarcely above a whisper, he introduced them; and after remaining for several hours, they tendered their presence to watch throughout the night, and the invitation was accepted. Night after night the friends came, until their brother recovered; dispensing those little attentions ever welcome to the sick, and for which the heart is always thankful.

During this time, the wife, of course, ascertained that the (to her) strange men, were members of the Lodge; and towards the end she conducted herself with all due respect—inviting them cordially to call again and receiving them with a smile of gladness on her cheek. Among them was Jonathan Gaines, or Brother Gaines—not with a "smutty" face, however. The dust of the shop had been removed, and as the wife looked upon him with surprise she learned not to judge men by appearances.

As soon as her husband was able to venture out in the night air, one evening, after supper, and as they were rising from the table, she playfully asked him if he was going to the Lodge. He shook his head, and made no verbal reply. She paused, and after gazing intently in his face for some moments, burst into a flood of tears, and throwing her arms around his neck, asked his forgiveness for what had passed, and urged him to take his degrees. She even ran and brought him his thick boots, cloak, and comfort. He did not need much persuasion, and, in the course of two weeks, he was versed in all the mysteries, from the white, through the intermediate shades, to the scarlet.

Occurrences like these are frequent, to my knowledge; and if agreeable, I may relate another. But, for the present, I will only remark that the good man referred to became a Noble Grand—yes, a Noble Grand! He was never more reproved by his wife for attending the lodge. Whenever the Order was assailed by those who knew nothing about it, (and this is usually the case,) she stood up for it like a man!
Her only objection was that she could not herself become a member, even of the Lodge to which Brother Gaines was attached. She knew by experience the practice was good—for generally when sickness comes, the friends which we have in health desert us. But there is one reflection, although she cannot be a brother, she can continue a sister, and, notwithstanding her preclusion from the Lodge may be a partaker, to the fullest extent of the principles designated by our motto of

"FRIENDSHIP, LOVE, AND TRUTH."

of Languages.

DAVID GILBERT, M. D., Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology.

Rev. J. G. MORRIS, D. D., Lecturer on Zoology.
WM. ALBAUGH, A. M., Tutor and Teacher in Preparatory Department.

H. R. GRIGER, Teacher of Writing.

The course of studies in Pennsylvania College is as extensive and substantial as that of any institution in the country. The Preparatory Department provides for instruction in all the branches of a thorough English business education, in addition to the Elements of the Mathematics and Classical Literature. The College course is arranged in the four classes usual in the institutions of this country.

The government of the students is as energetic as their circumstances seem to require. They attend at least two recitations a day, and the Faculty contemplate increasing them to three, Church and Bible Class on the Sabbath, and are visited in their rooms so frequently as to preclude the danger of any great irregularities. It is believed no institution in the United States has more exemplary young men in connexion with it. They are all required to lodge in the College edifice, special cases excepted.

The annual expenses are—for board, tuition and room rent, during the winter session $61 87 1-2; for the summer session, $41 87 1-2; washing, $10; wood, $3 00. Total expense, $116 75. Boarding can be had in town at $1 25 per week.

There are two vacations in the year, commencing on the third Thursdays of April and September; each of five weeks continuance.

The summer session will commence on Thursday, the 23d of May. The annual commencement takes place on the third Thursday in September.

The Trustees have recently made various arrangements which will increase the efficiency of the institution. They have increased the number of Professors and provided for the most ample instruction of the students.

Professor Baugher and Haupt are prepared to board boys and to exercise a special supervision over their studies and deportment, and Parents who may prefer placing their sons under their care, will be secure in regard to their proper management, under arrangements such as pertain to the family circle.

The Merchants' Magazine and Commercial Review, embraces every subject connected with Commerce, Manufactures and Political Economy, as follows: Commercial Legislation; Commercial History and Geography; Mercantile Biography; Descriptive, Statistical and Historical Accounts, of the various commodities which form the subject of Mercantile transactions; Port Charges; Tariffs; Customs and Excise Regulations; Commercial Statistics of the United States and the different countries of the world, with which we have intercourse, including their Physical Character, Population, Productions, Exports, Imports, Seaports, Monies, Weights, Measures, Finance and Banking Associations, and Enterprises connected with Commerce, embracing Fisheries, Incorporated Companies, Railroads, Canals, Steamboats, Docks, Post Offices, &c.; Principles of Commerce, Finance and Banking, with Practical and Historical Details and Illustrations; Commercial Law, and Mercantile All Reports and Decisions of Courts in the United States and Europe, including Insurance, Partnership, Principal and Agent, Bills of Exchange, Sale, Guaranty, Bankruptcy, Shipping and Navigation, &c., and whatever else shall tend to develop the resources of the country and the world, and illustrate the various topics bearing upon Commerce and Commercial Literature.

It has been, and will continue to be, the aim of the Editor and Proprietor of the Merchants' Magazine, to avoid everything of a party, political, or sectional bias or bearing, in the conduct of the work—opening its pages to the free and fair discussion of antagonistic doctrines connected with the great interests of Commerce, Agriculture, Manufactures and the Currency.

Complete sets of the Merchants' Magazine, embracing 12 semi-annual volumes, of about 600 large octavo pages each, bringing it down to June, 1844, inclusive, may be obtained at the Publisher's Office, 142 Fulton street, New York, at the subscription price.

Publishers of newspapers in the United States, by giving this advertisement two or three insertions and remitting Two Dollars to the Proprietor, will be entitled to the Magazine for one year.
